＜解答例＞

If I were given a large sum of money, I would use it to create a new computer that helps elderly people. There are two reasons.

One is that society is connected by the Internet, and new computers are user-friendly. An elderly person can use one to order things such as takeout food.

Secondly, elderly people will benefit from the use of computers for such things as medical care and remote diagnosis by which doctors can take care of many elderly patients.
